Your Personal Information

About Us

Please read this notice as it explains how and why we (Co-op Insurance) handle your personal information. Co-op Insurance is a trading name of CIS General Insurance Limited (CISGIL), whose registered office is CIS Building, Miller Street, Manchester M60 0AL, United Kingdom.

The notice explains:

- how we use your personal information;
- who we share your personal information with;
- what happens if we need to send your personal information abroad;
- how long we will keep your personal information for;
- when and how we will use your personal information for marketing;
- what may happen if you don't provide us with the correct information;
- your rights concerning the data we hold about you and how to contact our Data Protection Officer and the regulator.

How we use your personal information

Your personal information is used to provide you with your insurance product and the services relating to it. We, or our agents acting for us, will use your personal details to:

- give you a quotation for insurance;
- issue and service your policy;
- send you a renewal offer;
- handle any claims made.

To help with these activities, we will run checks for identification, creditworthiness and price setting against databases such as our Co-op Group membership database, which contains information about members and how they use their Co-op members cards, the Electoral Register and databases which contain publicly available information about County Court Judgments, bankruptcy and repossessions. In addition, we will contact credit reference agencies. Your information will also be used to comply with any legal obligations which Co-op Insurance has to meet.

Your personal information is also used to ensure Co-op Insurance remains a sustainable business for its members and customers. Outlined below are the types of things we do.

Preventing and detecting fraud and other crime

Co-op Insurance has a legitimate interest in detecting and preventing fraud and other crime and will use your personal information, such as your claims history to do this. We will also share this information about you with other organisations, including law enforcement agencies; search and pass information to claims registers; carry out credit searches; share your details with crime and fraud prevention and detection agencies.

If we identify false or inaccurate information or where fraud or other crime is identified, we will pass these details to crime and fraud prevention agencies. Law-enforcement and taxation agencies may also view and use this information as well as other organisations, to prevent fraud, money laundering and other crimes, for example when:

- checking details on applications for credit and credit-related or other facilities;
- managing credit and credit-related accounts or facilities;
- recovering debt and tracing beneficiaries;
- checking details on proposals and claims for all types of insurance;
- checking details of job applicants and employees.

We, and other organisations, may access and use the information recorded by crime and fraud prevention agencies from other countries. Please contact us on the number shown on your policy documents if you want to receive details of the relevant crime and fraud prevention agencies.

Credit searches

Credit Scoring to Calculate Your Premium

To help work out your price, whether you are asking for a new quotation or renewing an existing policy, we may calculate a credit score specifically for our use. We will get the information from credit reference agencies in a way that does not have a negative effect on your credit record or your future ability to get credit. We do not see or make use of any of the public data that is used to create this credit score. The same credit score will be used for any changes made to the policy during its term until its next renewal date.

Credit Reference Checks

If you choose to pay for your insurance policy by direct debit, a credit reference agency may carry out a check of your credit record, which details your personal credit history. This check will help us decide whether or not to offer you credit terms and will be recorded on your credit record. We may also pass to credit reference agencies information held about you and your payment record with Co-op Insurance. Credit reference agencies share information with other organisations, enabling applications for financial products to be assessed or to assist the tracing of debtors, or to prevent fraud or other crimes.

Reinsurance

To help spread the risk of insurance we provide you, Co-op Insurance, like most insurance companies, use your personal information to share the risk with reinsurance companies. This helps to ensure that the price of your insurance policy is kept as low as possible.

Service improvement and quality

Co-op Insurance carries out a number of activities to make sure we always deliver you the best possible service. We may use your details to assess customer satisfaction, ask for your feedback, adjust our risk and pricing methods, develop new services and products for you and both handle and improve our complaints operations.

Commercial viability

We may also use your personal details to help set our financial reserves.

Sharing your personal information

To carry out some of the above activities, we will share your personal information with organisations closely connected with the Co-op Group along with other third parties, such as credit reference agencies, reinsurers, claims handling, debt recovery, and crime and fraud prevention and detection agencies.

When acting under a legal requirement we and third parties may also pass your personal information to law enforcement, taxation and legal authorities.

Sending your personal information abroad

We and third parties we work with for the activities mentioned above may from time to time need to carry out some of the processing in countries outside of the European Economic Area. In these cases, Co-op Insurance will agree adequate controls are in place prior to the transfer of your personal information and that the controls are regularly reviewed.

Keeping your personal data

Co-op Insurance will ensure that your personal information is stored only for the minimum amount of time required. It will decide how long to keep the information based on:

- legal requirements;
- regulatory guidance;
- industry practice;
- legitimate business interest.

Your personal information responsibilities

If you don't take reasonable care to give us correct and complete answers to our questions, this may affect your policy. It could result in us increasing the price, rejecting your quotation or claim, reducing any claim settlement payment and/or your policy being cancelled or made void (treated as though it never existed).

Marketing
